Comments of Tutors / Sylwadau'r Tiwtoriaid

In this course you were introduced to the principles of professional conduct and the role of a public service interpreter with reference to the Impartial Model of Public Service interpreting. The course also covered the practical issues of working as an interpreter. You were asked to complete regular short written tests to demonstrate your understanding and knowledge of the topics studied. You achieved excellent A1 overall in your regular written tests. You also submitted a case study in which you were asked to analyse a short video and apply your understanding of the impartial model to your answers. You demonstrated your excellent understanding of the impartial role of public service interpreter and are aware of some really useful practical solutions, for which you were awarded A1. I am confident that you are now able to apply these in practice yourself.

General Comments and Recommendations: You made excellent progress and took active part in the class activities, sharing your experience with your peers. I am hoping that you will continue in your research and studies to expand on your interpreting skills and specialised terminology. It was a pleasure having you in the class.
